Services For Education is a growing children's charity in Birmingham. We use the power of learning and music to improve outcomes for children, young people and communities. Our diverse charitable projects support disadvantaged and vulnerable children, children in care, children and adults with additional needs (including mld, sld, pml, asd) and adults who are at risk of isolation and loneliness. By joining our team, you would be helping to change the lives of so many people in Birmingham.

About the Role:

As a Brass Teacher with us, you'll play a crucial role in developing the skills and musical passion of our students. This role is not just about teaching techniques; it's about motivating our students to understand and love the broad and vibrant world of brass instruments. You will be responsible for nurturing their talent, challenging their limits, and guiding them through an immersive educational journey.

We are interested in candidates with experience in the following areas:

- Small group/one-on-one teaching (all ages up to 18)
- Whole class instrumental teaching
- Ensemble direction (from beginner to advanced)
- Experience working with children with additional needs (in mainstream and special schools)
- Strong knowledge of music repertoire and examination systems (from beginner to advanced)

What We Offer:

- A competitive salary, complemented with benefits, based on your valuable experience.
- A supportive and creative work environment where your ideas and talents are valued.
- Opportunities for professional growth and development, fostering your career advancement.

- The chance to be part of a community of music enthusiasts and educators, making a positive impact.

If you are genuinely enthusiastic about music education and eager to make a meaningful difference in the lives of young musicians, we are excited to learn more about you. Please share a completed application form outlining your teaching philosophy and why you are the perfect fit for this role with our recruitment team. Join us in cultivating a love for music and nurturing the talents of the musicians of tomorrow. Take the first step and apply today!
